

The People's Column

I want to believe in my town, I want to think that it is the best anywhere. If I can't believe that, then I want to go somewhere else where I can believe it. That ought to be every man's creed and if everyone in Bryan had that viewpoint what a different town we might have. With everyone believing his town the best, and working toward making that ideal true, there is no limit as to the progress that might result. Let's get in this attitude—or move.

ALLEN ACADEMY FINAL MILITARY COMPETITIONS AND EXHIBITIONS WILL BE GIVEN MONDAY, MAY 24

The final military competitions and exhibitions for the school year 1925-26, always one of the most interesting features of the Allen Academy commencement program, will be held on the R. O. Allen lawn Monday afternoon, May 24, beginning at 4 o'clock. These exercises are of particular interest this year because of the unusually large number of awards to be made and the keen competition between the companies felt all during the year. The friends of the Academy are cordially invited to attend these exhibitions. Arrangements are being made to provide chairs for all spectators who desire to leave their cars.

The program will begin with a dress parade, the Allen Band furnishing the music. Following this, the competitive close order drill between Companies "A" and "B" will be held to determine the winner of company honors for 1925-1926. This honor carries with it the A. and M. Waldrop Honor Flag for the ensuing school year, and gives to the company commander of the winning company the Christensen-Rasmussen Cup. This competition has become traditional and always produces the most spirited contest of the year. Should Company "B" win the honors the count will be exactly even.

Following the company drill, every cadet in the Academy armed with the rifle will line up for the annual elimination in the manual of arms to determine the winner of the Bryan Chamber of Commerce Medal. The judges of the elimination will be unbiased regular Army officers on duty at the A. and M. College.

Each platoon will then compete to determine the best platoon in the corps. The platoon commander of the winning organization receives a medal as a reminder of the victory. Cadet Lieutenant Hershel Burgess, commanding the First Platoon of Company "B", who is now a student of Texas A. and M. College won this honor last year. Burgess' old platoon is positive they will repeat for their present commander this year. It will take May 24 to tell the story.

The afternoon's program will be continuous and without delay. Music will be furnished between competitions by the Allen Band. This will be one of the last appearances of the band prior to its departure on a tour of North and East Texas as early in June.

PRES. WALTON GIVE CATTLEMEN PRAISE FOR CONTRIBUTION STATE

When He Bid The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association Executive Board Welcome To A. and M.—Banquet Was Gala Occasion With Many Prominent Citizens Present—Other Speakers Were President R. M. Kleberg, James Callan, C. B. Denman and Colonel Frank P. Holland.

(Special to the Eagle)
COLLEGE STATION, May 19.—Praising members for making a great contribution to the economic welfare of the State, President T. O. Walton, of the A. and M. College of Texas, Tuesday night made the initial address during a banquet tendered the executive committee of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, which earlier in the day concluded its quarterly meeting. The cattlemen were entertained Tuesday afternoon by an inspection of the College dairy herd, the live stock breeding feeding stations, and a review of the R. O. T. C. corps, which was followed by the banquet.

TRIBUTE PAID ALL
President Walton, who was followed by five other speakers, paid tribute to the cattle raisers as "trail makers and empire builders" and predicted the dawning of a new day for the cattle industry. "No class of citizens suffered more privations," he declared, than our cattlemen, and they did not know what the word quit meant.

"Marketing is today their biggest problem, for this side of their business is not on the constructive basis it should be. "Cooperation alone will solve the marketing problem, and no successful substitute ever will be found for cooperation."

Bringing his subject to the service rendered the cattlemen by A. and M. College, President Walton described the college as "peculiarly a service institution" and stressed the value of the aid offered by the scientific research men here to the agricultural and cattle industry.

A. C. Williams, a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board, told of the influence of A. and M. College through its diversified program of farming and cattle raising, and declared that as a result of this great influence the government loaned Texas farmers $214,000,000 during the past year.

Ignorance among farmers of today is the cause of distress among them, Col. Frank P. Holland, of Dallas, editor of Farm and Ranch, and Holland publications, said. "Politicians have led farmers to believe that they needed government chaperonage, but they need agricultural education," Col. Holland explained. Switching to a discussion of A. and M. College, the Dallas editor asked the association to "put A. and M. College far ahead of any college in the United States", and insisted that a memorial hall be erected on the campus as a tribute to the cattlemen of the state.

"We will make it our business to see that the legislature appropriate money necessary for the improvement of A. and M. quarters and will use our influence to have the legislature also appropriate money for a memorial hall," the speaker promised.

James Callan of Menard, an honorary vice president of the association, declared that the cattlemen were not unmindful of the great help rendered them by A. and M. College, and that the association always and would continue to give its support to this institution.

"We believe the best investment ever made by red-blooded citizens of Texas will be to give A. and M. College what it needs", Mr. Callan declared.

Other speakers on the program were R. M. Kleberg, president of the association, and C. B. Denman, president of the Live Stock Producers Corporation.

Musical selections were rendered by the Aggiedad Orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sprague, and the Prairie View College male quartet.

IZAAK WALTON LEAGUE OBSERVES CHARTER NIGHT

(From Tuesday's Daily)

Charter night was observed by the Bryan and Brazos County Chapter of the Izaak Walton League at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Monday night. An enthusiastic audience of local sportsmen, who have enrolled as members of the local chapter, greeted the president of the Texas Division of the League, Judge Escar Floyd of Dallas, who delivered an address explaining the objects and purposes of the organization. Judge Floyd pointed out some of the outstanding accomplishments of the national organization as well as of the State organization. The present game laws passed by the recent session of the legislature was among the accomplishments promoted by the State organization. The opportunities of the local chapter to promote conservation of all natural resources including the wild life and the great outdoors were stressed by the speaker. Numerous instances throughout the nation of splendid achievement by local organizations because of the leverage they get from the parent organization were mentioned. The speaker closed with an eloquent appeal for progressive and unselfish activity in the promotion of the ideals that prompt conservation and growth. Nearly 150 local chapters have already been organized in Texas, said Judge Floyd, and in only two counties are there more than one organization, and in those cases only two. This means that throughout the State the Izaak Walton League is functioning and since it is growing rapidly it may be expected too soon spread to all parts of the State. The League members will be found invariably behind the State authorities in the enforcement of the fish and game laws and in the protection and planting of fish and game to the end that there will be plenty for all.

Hon. W. S. Barron followed Judge Floyd and gave his most enthusiastic approval of the movement and tendered his best energies in the problems to be met. He urged the taking of a modest but definite task and finish that before proceeding with too many other enterprises. In this he was liberally applauded. It was brought out that the first opportunity seems to be the promotion of a suitable game preserve to be set aside and kept inviolate from either hunting or fishing for a term of years as provided in the law and to tender the owners, who dedicate their property for such purposes, the hearty support of the League in giving such owners the protection the law provides. Several large tracts of land were mentioned as possibilities in that the owners are not only willing but anxious to dedicate them for the purpose. It was also pointed out that it will be impossible perhaps to accept all lands that may be tendered for preserves owing to the requirement that such preserves must be at least 10,000 acres in extent and should be in a solid body of continuous acreage. Once established, these preserves are protected as provided by statute, and only the overflow of game from the protected area may be killed during the legal hunting season.

Judge W. C. Davis delivered a strong address of approval and entered into the organization with vigor. His appeal for action in the development of the natural resources in Brazos county was applauded. He pointed out that the cost is not insurmountable and on the contrary is quite reasonable in comparison with the benefits to flow from the work. Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, president of the Bryan and Brazos County Chapter of Commerce, urged vigorous work on the part of the members, and pledging the co-operation of her organization and of The Eagle in promotion of the tasks undertaken by the League. Mrs. Rountree and H. D. Cuykendall were made honorary members of the League, upon motion of N. A. Stewart and seconded by everyone present. J. M. Caldwell reported talks with citizens in the outlying parts of the county, showing they are greatly interested in the League and will welcome its activities and extend its support.

A letter was read from Hon. Turner E. Hubby, State Game Commissioner, expressing his regret that another engagement prevented his attending this meeting but expressing the desire to attend a later meeting.

The charter was formally accepted and was signed by all present and will be signed later by the others of thirty-nine members already enrolled as charter members who were unable to attend the Monday night meeting.

Ed Sims was named by President A. D. Jackson to head and name his own committee to look after the game preserve matter, and Harry Estill was instructed to sense the various communities of the county as to their wish to organize auxiliary Leagues in those communities that may find it inconvenient to attend the County Chapter meetings at all time.

Bryan Visitors Hurt In Auto Accident

What came near being a very serious accident, resulted only in a few cuts and bruises, with skinned noses and hands bleeding profusely, when two cars collided on a curve of the road near Wellborn, Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. T. J. D. King of Batesville, Arkansas, and Thomas A. Gray and A. K. Peveo, of Fort Worth were the occupants of one of the cars, and Ed Scott, the colored undertaker of Bryan drove the other car. In passing, the cars failed to turn enough on account of the ditch on the side of the road, and came violently together, as both were running at a rapid speed.

Mr. and Mrs. King and the two young preachers of the Fort Worth Seminary, were returning from Houston where they had been attending the Southern Baptist convention. They came on into Bryan and stopped over for the night with their friends, Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Day. They all declare that "flirting with the undertaker" is bad business. After a pleasant night, with bruises dressed and the car again in running order, the Fort Worth party went on their way this morning.

CYRUS JENNINGS, WORLD WAR VETERAN, IS LAID TO REST ON SUNDAY-IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

After a long and painful illness, Cyrus Jennings passed away at the home of his father-in-law, Judge J. W. Hamilton and family, on West 26th street Saturday night, May 15, 1926. Mr. and Mrs. Jennings and their little daughter, Jane Elizabeth, had made their home with her parents in Bryan since his health became so bad, and during their residence here made a wide circle of true friends who mourn with the family today in their great sorrow and bereavement.

Cyrus Jennings was born at Leander, Williamson county, Texas, November 10, 1890, and was 35 years, 6 months and 5 days of age at the time of his death. He came to the A. and M. College of Texas as a Federal trainee after his discharge from the United States Army at the close of the World War, and it was here that he met and married Miss Frances Hamilton, his beloved companion.

Cyrus Jennings was a brave and fearless soldier, and served his country with distinction during the recent world struggle. He enlisted in the Army at San Antonio, Texas, November 30, 1917, as Private First Class, Medical Corps, 109th Infantry, 28th Division. On May 2, 1918, he sailed with the American Expeditionary Forces for overseas duty, where he remained until March 25th, 1919. He was at the Battle of the Marne and Oareq River, and on September 7, 1918, was gassed in the Battle at Velse River. After several weeks in the Army Hospital, he again joined his company and took part in the Battle of St. Mihiel. He was honorably discharged from the service of the U. S. Army at Camp Bowie, Texas, in March, 1919. His health, however, was lost, and he was never well and strong again. As a Federal trainee he was given vocational education as a cotton classifier and for some time was successfully engaged in this new work, but soon had to discontinue his place of service on account of failing health. Those who knew him well, knew best of his high moral manhood and his Christian virtues. Noble and ambitious, he fought bravely to regain his place of usefulness in world affairs, but the dread disease would not be stayed, and death came to him at the time above stated.

His young wife and one precious little daughter, Jane Elizabeth Jennings, survive him; also one sister, Miss Florence Jennings of Granger, and two brothers, T. W. Jennings of Garland and T. J. Jennings of Leander.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at five o'clock from the home of Judge and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton. Rev. C. B. Thompson, pastor of the Free Baptist Church, officiating, and assisted by Rev. J. J. Tatum. A male quartette sang at the home and at the grave, and was composed of L. E. Dowd, W. S. Barron, Harold Sanders, and R. R. Rush. A wealth of exquisite flowers covered the casket and the new made grave. All arrangements were directed by the McCulloch-Gordon Company, and the pall bearers were: Active—Harry Edge, Walter Holmes, Paul Martin, Parker Carroll, C. L. Baker, Jr., N. A. Stewart.

Honorary pall bearers were: L. E. Dowd, Theodore Thomsen, F. E. Lichte, Earl Tatum, Jack Bullock, J. W. Payne, Pat Patterson, Dr. C. A. Searcy, Herbert Sanders, E. J. Payne.

Nervous hot flashes

"SOME time ago when in a very nervous, run-down condition," says Mrs. Martha F. Maslow, of Broken Bow, Okla., "I tried numerous remedies to try at least to keep going, but I could not. I was weak and tired—just no good at all. My back ached and I had hot flashes until I was so very nervous I smothered."

"I couldn't sleep and I was never hungry, and kept getting weaker. I couldn't stand on my feet. This was an unusual condition for me as I had been pretty strong all along. I know that I would have to do something, and that pretty soon."

"Some friend suggested that I take Cardui, and it certainly was a good suggestion, for after taking one bottle I could tell I was stronger and better. I didn't quit. I kept it up and did fine. I felt like a different person after I began taking Cardui."
